ACM Animal Care and Management Training Package

SKI_ANN_2425_004 ACM Veterinary Nursing Skills and Qualification Review

Start date: 31 January 2025
Expected completion date: 30 December 2026

Prioritisation: Routine— 12 months
To allow suitable time for targeted face-to-face consultation in rural and remote areas to better target stakeholders impacted by and/or interested in the outcomes of the project.

This Training Product Development activity is a comprehensive review of veterinary nursing qualifications ensuring that qualifications remain industry-relevant.

The veterinary services industry supports a thorough review of the Certificate IV and Diploma of Veterinary Nursing to ensure occupational and skills alignment, including compliance with regulatory requirements. Skills such as performing dental prophylaxis, taking radiographs, and conducting nurse consultations, deemed essential for diploma-level graduates, are currently situated at Certificate-IV level, creating a misalignment between job roles and AQF level. Addressing this misalignment may support determination of the skills standards that would be stipulated under the potential mandatory registration of veterinary nurses and technicians, as advocated by the Australasian Veterinary Boards Council, and supported by the Veterinary Nurses Council of Australia.

More information is available on the project webpage.

For review:

- 2 qualifications
- 60 units of competency

See Attachment B for list of products being reviewed.

The revised qualification and a proposed new skill set for security screen installers will also align with the national occupational licensing initiative. This initiative seeks to ensure all professionals in the field are equipped with the skills required to deliver high-quality, compliant, and reliable installations.

More information is available on the project webpage.
